DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-11 and 13-15 are currently presented and have been examined.

Information Disclosure Statement

The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on 5 October 2005 was filed before the mailing of an action on the merits. The submission is in compliance with the provisions of 37 CFR 1.97. Accordingly, the information disclosure statement is being considered by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-11 and 13-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1-11 and 13-15 recite "said local storage structure" and "said local storage". There is insufficient antecedent basis in the claim for these limitations.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 7, 10, and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claim 7 recites "wherein the processor implementable instructions are carried by a data carrier".

Signals used as readable media are not statutory subject matter since a signal encoded with functional descriptive material does not fall under any of the four statutory classes. See In re Nuijten, 500 F.3d 1346, 1358 (Fed. Cir. 2007).

Claims 10 and 15 recite an email management system and a document management system. Within the specification, it is disclosed that "...the e-mail browser/manager is sometimes called a Mail User Agent (MUA)." It also disclosed that "Related systems, methods and terminals may be used for managing documents stored in folders instead of emails."

MPEP 2106 states:

"Similarly, computer programs claimed as computer listings per se, i.e., the descriptions or expressions of the programs, are not physical "things." They are neither computer components nor statutory processes, as they are not "acts" being performed. Such claimed computer programs do not define any structural and functional interrelationships between the computer program and other claimed elements of a computer which permit the computer program's functionality to be realized...Since a computer program is merely a set of instructions capable of being executed by a computer, the computer program itself is not a process and Office personnel should treat a claim for a computer program, without the computer-readable medium needed to realize the computer program's functionality, as nonstatutory functional descriptive material."

Claims 10 and 15 recite a computer program that does not recite a computer readable storage medium, therefore, these claims are considered to be nonstatutory functional descriptive material since the computer program's functionality cannot be realized.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-11 and 13-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by US Patent 6,779,019 B1 to Mousseau et al.

Regarding claim 1, Mousseau disclosed a method of managing emails in a mobile terminal ("mobile data communication device") of a mobile e-mail system, the mobile email system comprising an email server ("network server" containing a "redirector" program or "host system") coupled to a static terminal ("user's desktop PC") and in wireless communication with said mobile terminal, said static terminal having a folder-based data storage structure for storing emails received by a user of said static terminal (see at least column 3, lines 25-51 and column 18, lines 28-51), said email server also being configured to provide said received emails to said mobile terminal (see at least column 3, lines 1-25), said mobile terminal locally duplicating at least a portion of said static terminal folder-based data storage structure, whereby said user is able to manage emails sent to a single address using said static and said mobile terminal (see at least column 3, lines 1-17 and column 18, lines 28-51), the method comprising:

inputting, at said mobile terminal, a command from said user to move an email from a first folder of said local storage structure to a second folder of said local storage structure; deleting said email from said local storage of said mobile terminal responsive to said user move command; and sending said move command from said mobile terminal to said email server. (see at least column 6, line 63-column 7, line 14, column 18, lines 28-51 and especially column 22, lines 57-column 23, line 23)

Claims 6-7, 11, and 14 are also rejected since these claims recite substantially the same limitations as recited in claim 1. "Documents" are interpreted to be a broader term for "emails", therefore, the teachings of Mousseau also encompass "documents".

Regarding claim 2, Mousseau disclosed the method as claimed in claim 1 wherein said first folder comprises an incoming mail-box of said mobile terminal. (see at least column 19, lines 27-44, specifically a folder type "inbox") (see also column 18, lines 28-51)

Regarding claim 3, Mousseau disclosed the method as claimed in claim 1 wherein said second folder of said storage structure local to said mobile terminal has associated property data for specifying said second folder as a folder in which emails are not to be stored locally in said mobile terminal, and wherein said deleting is conditional upon said property data. (see at least column 6, line 63-column 7, line 14, column 18, lines 28-51 and especially column 22, lines 57-column 23, line 23)

Regarding claim 4, Mousseau disclosed the method as claimed in claim 1 wherein said sending of said move command comprises encoding said move command as a command email ("command message") and sending said command email. (see at least column 11, lines 20-34)

Regarding claim 5, Mousseau disclosed the method as claimed in claim 1 wherein said mobile terminal is in intermittent contact with said email server, said method further comprising connecting said mobile terminal to said server via an internet connection. (see at least column 10, lines 20-45)

Regarding claim 8, Mousseau disclosed a method of managing emails in a mobile email system, comprising: implementing the method of claim 1; (see references above regarding claim 1)

receiving said move command at said email server; and sending a command to perform said move to said static terminal. (see at least column 6, line 63-column 7, line 14, column 18, lines 28-51 and especially column 22, lines 57-column 23, line 23)

Claim 13 is also rejected since this claim recites substantially the same limitations as recited in claim 8.

Regarding claim 9, Mousseau disclosed the method as claimed in claim 8 wherein said email server comprises a first email server for receiving and sending emails to and from said user from and to a third party, and a second email server for sending emails to said mobile terminal and receiving and forwarding commands from said mobile terminal; the method further comprising receiving said move command at said second email server and forwarding said move command to said first email server; and wherein said first email server performs said command sending to said static terminal. (see at least column 6, line 63-column 7, line 14, column 18, lines 28-51 and especially column 22, lines 57-column 23, line 23)

Claims 10 and 15 are also rejected since these claims recite substantially the same limitations as recited in claim 9.
